Introduction

This resource was developed in an effort to assist sponsors and a wide range of support service providers to access interpretation and translation services quickly and efficiently in order to support refugees.

One of the biggest challenges when serving refugees will be communication/language. Most clients will have limited English and/or French proficiency. Primary Care Hubs, where clients can be seen for their initial medical visits, are equipped to provide interpretation for medical visits. Two methods of interpretation may be used: face-to-face interpretation or over-the-phone interpretation. In both cases, trained interpreters will generally be preferred by the Primary Care Hubs.

Face-to-face interpretation occurs when an interpreter is physically present at the session and interprets the conversation that occurs within that setting between clients and healthcare providers (and others present in the room)

Over-the-phone interpretation occurs when the healthcare provider calls an interpreter (through an agency) and the interpretation occurs with the use of a phone (either speaker phone or with two handsets/headsets/receivers).

It is preferable to always use trained interpreters, especially for medical and legal appointments. This is to ensure accurate interpretation takes place, maintaining client safety. Trained interpreters will always speak in the third person and will interpret the messages between two parties directly and in the same register as the speaker/listener. If an interpreter needs clarification or has concerns during interpretation, then he/she may interrupt the session by clearly stating the reason for interruption.

For other interpretation needs such as in social settings, conveying general information or for assistance accessing local services volunteer interpreters may be available. These may be accessed through settlement agencies and through Refugee 613 volunteer management.

NOTE: Most departments at hospitals have access to interpretation services. Please ensure that you are always asking for an interpreter when scheduling an appointment, if one is required. When an appointment is booked at the hospital with an interpreter, the client will usually get a reminder call from the interpreter, who will provide the details of the appointment (date, time, location, related instructions, etc.).

This leaflet, produced by the Health Interpretation Network: Working With Your Professional Interpreter \(Arabic\), explains the importance of using a professional interpreter to the client.

The English version is available here: Working With Your Professional Interpreter \(English\), Working With Your Professional Interpreter \(French\). Copies of the leaflet can be ordered, free of charge (100 max), from the Health Interpretation Network and are available in many languages.

RIO - Remote Interpretation Ontario

In response to the growing demand for immediate 24/7 access to over-the-phone interpretation, AALS developed R.I.O. - Remote Interpretation Ontario Network. R.I.O. is a collaborative shared call centre model with other non-profit community interpretation agencies in the province to provide a local, regional, and affordable alternative for on-demand immediate phone interpretation.

The call centre is resourced by each collaborating agency with their own interpreters in the languages that they designate as in top demand or need in their region. All the interpreters are pooled centrally through a private, VOIP-hosted call centre platform and are made available to the R.I.O. network. All R.I.O. collaborating agencies meet the training and qualifications standards that AALS has for its own interpreters.

To access R.I.O., you will be provided with a six-digit client ID. You will be asked for your client ID when you call to reach an interpreter.

RIO is simple to use and accessible from anywhere within North America with our toll-free number, 1-888-278-8007. Please contact us by phone at (416) 324-2731 or toll-free at 1-888-278-8007 or by email at languages@accessalliance.ca for further details and to set up your RIO account.

Any proceeds from AALS are invested into improving the sector in supporting high quality services for the most vulnerable immigrants and refugees that we serve.

OLA - Ottawa Language Access

OTTAWA NEWCOMER HEALTH CENTRE | CENTRE DE SANTÉ POUR NOUVEAUX ARRIVANTS D'OTTAWA

Ottawa Language Access (OLA) is a new community based initiative programme supported by the Champlain Local Health Integration Network (LHIN) to provide free language interpretation assistance to immigrants and refugees seeking health care services.

OLA's primary objectives include improving accessibility of key health care services to Limited or no English or French Proficiency (LEFP) individuals; promoting the continuity and coordination of immigrant and refugee health and help individuals overcome dis-empowering circumstances caused by barriers of language. To accomplish these objectives OLA will provide free language interpretation services to support LHIN funded programs in three priority areas (only):

- chronic diseases,
- seniors' health, and
- mental health & addictions (including problem gambling).

As part of our service model, OLA will provide clients and service providers with high quality professionally trained and, insured interpreters that can be scheduled for in person (face-to-face) interpretation or, over the phone interpretation.

During the current influx of Syrian refugees OLA is providing free interpretation services to the Primary Care Hubs as needed.

If health and mental health service providers require interpretation support for refugees, OLA may be able to partner with those who are eligible to bill IFH for interpretation services to provide services within the level of funds available from IFH.

For more information, contact Ottawa Newcomer Health Centre at 613-691-0192.
